Farmers and Consumers Bulletin

VOLUME 59 NO. 4

APRIL 2011

CHANGE COMING TO THE ALABAMA FARMERS & CONSUMERS BULLETIN

The Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries has been hit with a massive $7 million budget cut. As a result, the department has had no other choice, but to reduce staff and services provided to the public. We no longer can afford to provide staff and bear the cost of printing the Alabama Farmers and Consumers Bulletin.

But, all is not lost. We have at least one interested party who wants to continue publishing the Alabama Farmers and Consumers Bulletin. Our intention is to facilitate this transition and see to it that this fine publication continues serving the people of Alabama, as it has for over 90 years.

The Alabama Farmers and Consumers Bulletin staff is sincerely grateful to those who have been faithful advertisers and help make this publication so useful to all of the subscribers. Our staff genuinely appreciates the many kind words expressed over the years from so many subscribers. We hope that subscribers and advertisers continue with the new publisher.

The anticipated 45% cut from the state's general fund has forced us to make a number of extraordinary decisions. The state's financial crisis affects so many more people than most can imagine. These are difficult days for the entire staff at the Department of Agriculture and Industries as the pains of proration are being felt.

The department will continue to strive to provide timely, fair and expert regulatory control of goods and services for which applicable state and federal laws exist while protecting Alabama consumers. You can be assured, we will always strive for integrity and professional performance.

As the details are finalized concerning the future of the Alabama Farmers and Consumers Bulletin, your address will remain on the mailing list and you will be notified by mail with new operating procedures.

McMILLAN'S MESSAGE

Commissioner
John McMillan

Just a few years ago, when government revenues were growing at a record pace, you did not hear people talking about state employee layoffs. How things have changed.

We're now in the midst of the third of three years of declining state revenues and double-digit proration is coming to the Alabama Department of Agriculture & Industries. What a difference a few years can make.

Looking forward, we must adjust to a new reality of a much smaller Department of Agriculture & Industries. Just over two months ago, when I was sworn in as Commissioner, there was some discussion of as much as a 10% cut in our General Fund revenue. Today, we face a 45% cut.

What this means is learning to do our job with less, $7 million less. Our department has never been large. We are bound by state law to protect the food supply and regulate the $5 billion agriculture and agribusiness industries with about a staff of 390 people. After the current round of budget cuts, we will be left with some 60 fewer employees to do the same number of inspections and certifications.

We have trimmed back and trimmed some more from our operation. People who perform the tasks required by law have been top priority. We take very seriously the critical work done by our inspectors, lab technicians, veterinarians, and agronomists. Their work is the backbone of our department.

Unfortunately, I don't think the general public or a lot of other branches of government realize the responsibilities we have out there in the areas of food safety and consumer protection. That is unfortunate, because we are going to have to give up some territories in those areas.

If we should have an outbreak of avian influenza, exotic new castle disease or any other avian disease, it could potentially shut down the state's poultry industry. It is critical we keep the department functioning at a level to protect the state's top farm commodity.

It has been my responsibility to personally inform many of the employees who have been laid off in our department. Throughout this process, we have tried to remain as transparent as possible to inform employees of our fiscal situation and how it would affect us.

As we move forward, it is my goal to rebuild this department so that we serve agriculture, agribusiness and all Alabamians more proactively with a constructive relationship. Our intent is to see that we can help to make agriculture and agribusiness more prosperous. This will mean more jobs and opportunity for Alabama.

Sign Up for Precision Farming Ends April 29th

State Conservationist Dr. William Puckett with the USDA-Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) announced April 29, 2011, as the cutoff date for sign-up for the Precision Farming Incentive under the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP). Applying for EQIP is continuous; however, selecting applications for funding is completed periodically through batching periods with specific cutoff dates.

The Precision Farming Incentive is designed to encourage the adoption of variable-rate application of nutrients and pesticides and promote the use of GPS-enabled precision agricultural technology and equipment. The goals of the Precision Farming Incentive include improving water quality by targeting areas for reduced nutrient and pesticide application, reducing runoff and leaching of pesticides, enhancing soil quality through reduced erosion and soil compaction and energy conservation through accurate and efficient application of crop inputs. The Alabama Cooperative Extension System (ACES) is partnering on this initiative.

Under the Precision Farming Incentive, annually planted cropland in the following counties is eligible for 2011: Autauga, Baldwin, Barbour, Blount, Cherokee, Clay, Coffee, Colbert, Covington, Dale, Dallas, DeKalb, Elmore, Escambia, Etowah, Fayette, Franklin, Geneva, Henry, Houston, Jackson, Lamar, Lauderdale, Lawrence, Limestone, Madison, Marengo, Marion, Marshall, Mobile, Monroe, Montgomery, Morgan, Pickens, Randolph, Russell, and Winston.

Interested producers should visit their nearest USDA Service Center to determine eligibility. Individuals are not eligible for EQIP until they have completed the Farm Bill eligibility requirements. Contact your local NRCS or Farm Service Agency Office to begin this process. NRCS field offices are listed in the telephone directory under U.S. Department of Agriculture or on-line <http://offices.sc.egov.usda.gov>.

Ag Hall of Honor Recipients

Agricultural Water Enhancement Program

The USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) recently announced April 29, 2011, as the cutoff date for signup for the Agricultural Water Enhancement Program (AWEP). Applying for AWEP is continuous; however, selecting applications for funding is completed periodically through batching periods with specific cutoff dates.

The Agricultural Water Enhancement Program promotes ground and surface water conservation and improves water quality by helping farmers and ranchers implement agricultural water enhancement activities. Alabama AWEP will focus on the installation of upland storage ponds. Stored water will be used during the summer for irrigation. Practices that will be available include:

- Constructing upland irrigation storage ponds.
- Installing pumps and pipelines to fill storage ponds.
- Irrigation system improvements or irrigation efficiency enhancements to improve the efficiency of and reduce the energy needs of existing irrigation systems.

- Installation of soil moisture sensors and water meters to monitor and improve irrigation efficiencies.

AWEP was established by the 2008 Farm Bill and funding comes from the Environmental Quality Incentives Program (EQIP). NRCS administers AWEP by entering into EQIP contracts directly with agricultural producers. Funding for this project was a direct result of a grant proposal by the Alabama Farmers Federation, the Alabama Soil and Water Conservation Committee, and the Alabama Universities Irrigation Initiative.

All AWEP recipients must meet EQIP requirements. It is designed for bona fide agricultural producers that have been in crop production and have the need for water. The amount of storage will be determined by an irrigation budget based on the exact amount of water justified by the crops irrigated. Applicants must be in agricultural production in order to apply. The statewide signup will be continuous with the first batching period ending on April 29, 2011. Successive batching periods may occur if additional funds become available.

Interested producers should visit their nearest USDA Service Center to determine eligibility. Individuals are not eligible for EQIP until they have completed the Farm Bill eligibility requirements. Contact your local NRCS or Farm Service Agency Office to begin this process. NRCS field offices are listed in the telephone directory under U.S. Department of Agriculture or <http://offices.sc.egov.usda.gov>. 2010 represented the 75th year of NRCS helping people help the land. Since its inception in 1935, the NRCS conservation delivery system has advanced a unique partnership with state and local governments and private landowners delivering conservation based on specific, local conservation needs, while accommodating state and national interests.

PRODUCT SPOTLIGHT The Southeastern Equestrian Trails Conference

John's Famous Angel Hair Slaw Dressing has been pleasing customers since the end of World War II. It is a unique blend of oils and seasonings that create a sweet and tangy sauce that is great on a number of items. It was originally served over a bed of thin sliced cabbage, and it became so popular that customers began requesting to take it home in whatever container they could find.

In 1990 the great nephew of the original creator, John

Proferis, began bottling the sauce for sale in grocery stores and restaurants. To place orders, view recipes, and even to take their survey, please visit their website. Whether you like it on chicken fingers, burgers or vegetables, they want to know how YOU like to eat John's Famous Angel Hair Slaw Dressing!

McMillan to Serve as Honorary Chair for 2011 ACEF

The Alabama Chicken and Egg Festival (ACEF) has selected Agriculture and Industries Commissioner John McMillan to serve as honorary chair for the 2011 festival.

"The Alabama Chicken and Egg Festival is without a doubt one of the most anticipated and entertaining events in the state," said Commissioner McMillan. "The festival features such a great variety of music and art that can be enjoyed by the entire family. I am truly excited to serve as the honorary chairman and look forward to seeing everyone there."

Children will be entertained with a story when Commissioner McMillan serves as a Celebrity Reader on Saturday, April 9 at 10:30 a.m. in the Bank Independent Children's Area. The Department of Agriculture and Industries will have a booth in the Coliseum during the Festival where members of the staff will be available for questions and will be distributing information.

According to the Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries, Alabama's total farm receipts were over $4.75 billion for 2009-10 (not including forestry). It employs over 476,000 people, which is roughly 20% of the state's workforce. Furthermore, Alabama is the #3 broiler state in the nation producing over 1 billion birds annually.

"The ACEF is honored that Commissioner McMillan has agreed to serve as honorary chair of the 2011 event," said ACEF Event Coordinator Vicki Morese. "The support of the Department of Agriculture and Industries has been invaluable to the festival as we continue to focus on the culture in agriculture."

It will require greater use of technology and a better use of human resources on our part. Doing more with less will be a challenge but it's our only alternative.

We have a talented team of professionals who work long hours and are prepared to do more for this department to better serve agriculture and agribusiness.

The Southeastern Equestrian Trails Conference (SETC) is a coming together of equine organizations and individuals (both private and public) that share knowledge, experiences and resources to enhance the equine world. Started in 1999, the National Symposium on Horse Trails in Forest Ecosystems - a conference for those interested in building, maintaining, and enjoying equestrian trails - was held at Clemson University. In the years that followed, annual conferences have been held throughout the southeast and became known as the Southeastern Equestrian Trail Conference. Today, SETC stands as the education forum for bringing equestrian interests together to share current information and build coalitions to support the equine trail industry.

A 2006 Auburn University study reported that the horse industry plays "a pivotal role in maintaining the state's rural infrastructure and bolstering Alabama's economy to the tune of $2.39 billion annually." Alabama's Southeastern Equestrian Trail Conference (SETC) conference will offer the opportunity for further development

FFA CHAPTERS REACHING OUT TO ALABAMA FARMERS

FFA chapters in Alabama have joined with chapters in six other states to make new and stronger connections with their local farmers and earn their share of more than $225,000 in incentives provided by Monsanto.

The 2011 FFA Chapter Challenge encourages members of FFA chapters in Alabama, Georgia, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota and Missouri to reach out to their community's farmers, learn about their operations, engage them and bond them with FFA.

Confirmation of each participating chapter's connection with local farmers must be registered by farmers online at FFAChapterChallenge.com or by calling the National FFA Organization at 800-293-2387. The deadline for farmers to confirm connections is May 1. FFA chapter winners will be announced by May 15.

The top 125 FFA chapters that make the most connections with farmers will receive a $1,500 certificate of credit of the equine industry as an economic engine for rural Alabama. Building on thirteen years of technical expertise and momentum provided by the regional SETC organization, the Alabama coalition has established specific objectives to bring an educational opportunity to Alabama's equine community and to develop the foundation to organize and expand our state's equine industry.

There are several goals that have been set for the SETC.

One is to develop the next generation of trail riders by involving youth in all aspects of the conference. Second, is to provide a forum for dialog on important issues such as tort claims, landowner incentives, and public land policies. Third, to serve as the catalyst to building a network sufficient to support an equine tourism industry in Alabama. And lastly to develop a trail riders certification program to address sustainability issues with trails, horse care, and rider protocols while exploring the concerns surrounding environmental sustainability so that Alabama's Equestrian Trail Program may be long-lived.

The theme for the conference is "Creating, Coordinating and Conserving a Trail Friendly Environment." The conference will be held at the Auburn Conference Center on July 21 - 23, 2011. The ultimate goal is to develop Alabama's equine community into an organized coalition of informed trail users with the skills to lead and affect change. For more information please visit www.southeasternequestriantrails.com, call 205/663-2309 or e-mail setc2011@aol.com.

We are proud to support FFA from the National FFA Organization. Chapters can use the credit throughout the year to buy FFA member jackets, merchandise, awards, banquet supplies and more.

Chapters can also use the funds to pay member costs associated with attending the organization's largest annual events, the Washington Leadership Conference and national FFA convention.

Only FFA chapters in the seven states are eligible to participate. More than 1,700 FFA chapters and their combined 117,824 FFA members can take part in the FFA Chapter Challenge.

The chapter that makes the most connections among the top 125 chapters that participate in the Challenge will be awarded a grand prize - an all-expenses-paid trip for six FFA members and one adult advisor to October's National FFA Convention in Indianapolis. The grand prize has an actual retail value of $6,500.

For more information about the 2011 FFA Chapter Challenge, sponsored by Monsanto, please visit www.FFAChapterChallenge.com.

Formerly known as Future Farmers of America, the National FFA Organization provides agricultural education to more than 523,000 student members in grades seven through 12 who belong to one of 7,487 local FFA chapters throughout the U.S., Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands. The organization operates under a federal charter granted by the 81st U.S. Congress and it is an integral part of public instruction in agriculture. For more, information visit www.FFA.org.
