

SPARKS' REMARKS

Commissioner
Ron Sparks

Our Food Safety Division stays incredibly busy year round and this past year is no exception. The inspectors routinely check for out-of-date products and inspect retail facilities. Along with their other duties, this division is responsible for investigating recalls. Recalls are divided into three categories, Class I-III, with Class I being the most urgent. Over the last year, the division has handled 47 Class I recalls for products sold in Alabama.

A Class I recall is addressed immediately by inspectors through "recall effectiveness checks." These are initiated to determine whether the manufacturer of the product and the retail and wholesale businesses that sell the products are properly administering the recall and removing the products from the marketplace.

Division Director Lance Hester and his team of inspectors and department lab personnel have investigated recalls that include green beans contaminated with a dangerous bacterial toxin, the Salmonella St. Paul outbreak found to be sourced from imported peppers, and listeria in hot dogs. They have also dealt with E-coli, unlabelled food allergens, and foreign materials such as metal shavings.

One of the most alarming product scares we have experienced included imported products from China containing dangerous levels of melamine. Several of these tainted products were clearly marketed for children. When our inspectors acted on these recalls they also made sure to check for other possibly contaminated imported products. This led to the discovery of unsafe levels of melamine in Koala's March cookies, which had already been taken off the market in Canada and led to a nationwide recall.

With almost one Class I recall each week, it is extremely important that the staff is well-trained and alert. Food safety is such an important issue in this state and across the nation. I want to commend them for doing a great job of serving the public and protecting consumers.

Thank You for your Response

Commissioner Sparks thanks Alabama farmers and consumers for making their voices heard regarding the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) proposal on livestock gas emissions. The proposal announced by the EPA was an advance announcement in anticipation of an actual regulation that would likely be brought up for government approval in 2009.

The EPA greenhouse gas emissions proposal would trigger a permitting process that would include some livestock operations and potentially cause a tremendous hardship for producers. "Any proposal officially posted by the EPA for public comment is something that should be taken seriously," said Sparks. "This is a perfect example of why the EPA would post this type of information on their website for comments, to get a reaction from farmers and producers." Sparks says that he and the Department of Agriculture & Industries' staff will continue to monitor the issue, work closely with other agricultural organizations, and keep farmers abreast of any updates.

More information about this proposed regulation can be found online at <http://www.epa.gov/EPA-AIR/2008/July/Day-30/a16432a.htm>.

A CENTURY FARMER

On November 25, 2008, Assistant Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries Doug Rigney had the distinct honor of presenting a Century and Heritage Farm award for the Department to a century old farmer. Not quite a century-old, yet but Earl Baker will be 100 years old this January. As far as Department records indicate, this is the first time that both the farmer and the farm date back 100 years. That evening, several members of the Baker family were present to take part in the Old Baker Farm's designation and to see Baker receive his certificate and farm sign.

The Old Baker Farm located in Harpersville was acquired by the Baker family in August of 1903. This farm has been owned by the same family for over one hundred years and reflects interesting and important historical and agricultural qualities. This farm demonstrates a durability and love of the land that is the heritage of the State of Alabama. The family has researched and obtained documentation of who owned the property since July 9, 1821.

In the past, the Baker family grew cotton and corn as well as raised hogs and cattle. There are several structures remaining on the property today, including two homes built in the early 1800's, a corn crib and outhouse built in the early 1900's and a barn built in 1919.

Currently, Jerry Baker operates the farm for his father, Earl Baker, where they grow cotton, corn, pumpkins, watermelons, Christmas trees and timber as well as raise livestock. The Old Baker Farm is a great example

GUIDELINES FOR SUBMITTING ADS TO THE ALABAMA FARMERS & CONSUMERS BULLETIN

Following are several of the guidelines for advertising in the Alabama Farmers & Consumers Bulletin. Adherence to these rules will ensure quick processing of ads. All ads that do not meet the following guidelines will be returned. The list below is NOT an all inclusive list of guidelines. For a complete list go to the department's website www.agi.alabama.gov and select "Ag News".

1. Only those ads which pertain to agricultural products and to those items employed in the actual growth, harvesting and disposal of such products will be accepted.
2. Ads must be legible and should be typed or printed. Ads must be limited to 20 words. This does not include name, address or phone number.
3. Ads must include name, address, county & phone number. Only two phone numbers will be listed. Due to the number of character spaces required for most e-mail addresses, an advertiser must select either a resident address or an e-mail address. Both cannot be printed.
4. Ads will not be accepted from dealers, merchants or commercial establishments.
5. Ads received by fax or e-mail must be received by 5:00 p.m. on the 10th day of the month and ads received by regular mail must be received by 5:00 p.m. on the 12th day of the month in order to appear in the following month's issue. The e-mail address is afcb@agi.alabama.gov and the fax number is 334/240-7169.
6. Only one ad (one category) per family per issue will be published. Family refers to all individuals sharing the same residence, address or telephone number.
7. Prices must be included with all items offered for sale. Price ranges may be used in certain ads; for example, due to age, weight, etc. cattle can be advertised as $1,200-$1,500.

Advertisements in the BULLETIN are published on a first come, first serve basis. It is to the advertiser's advantage to submit their items as soon as possible. While the BULLETIN does not assume responsibility for transactions resulting from the use of this publication, all means of preventing fraud will be exercised. Misrepresentation will result in the revocation of all privileges.

Farmers' Tax Guide Changes for 2008

Farmers preparing to file for the 2008 tax season should note that the Internal Revenue Service has changed its 2008 Publication 225, Farmers' Tax Guide, according to a November 26, 2008, IRS Web notice.

The IRS notes that on pages 2 and 66 under "Federally declared disasters," Item 2 of the numbered list was changed to reflect the correct line number for the worksheet. It now reads: "You can deduct a net disaster loss even if you do not itemize your net disaster loss on line 6 of the Standard Deduction Work-sheet - Line 40 in the Form 1040 instructions."

The Farmers Tax Guide explains how the federal tax laws apply to farming. Farmers are urged to use the publication as a guide to figure their taxes and complete their returns. If more information is needed on a subject, farmers are urged to get the specific tax publication covering that subject. Those additional publications are mentioned throughout the Farmers' Tax Guide, along with ordering information.

The tax guide is available on-line at <http://www.irs.gov/publications/p225/index.html> or for assistance call 1-800-829-3676.

Alabama Agricultural Mediation Program

This service provides a highly skilled, impartial mediator to facilitate a confidential meeting with the farm borrowers and their lenders or with the farmers and USDA as they resolve their differences. Farmers may also receive financial analysis before the mediation.

For more information call 1-800-642-7761, ext. 7249 or log on to www.agi.alabama.gov/ag-mediation. All calls are confidential.

EGG & POULTRY GUIDELINE FOR THE BULLETIN

Only agricultural birds, not pet or psitticine birds, should be listed for sale in the Bulletin. You do not have to be a participant in the NPIP (National Poultry Improvement Plan) program in order to advertise birds. If you need clarification as to whether your bird qualifies as an agricultural bird, you may use the NPIP book as a reference, it lists all poultry and agricultural type species. Examples of agricultural or poultry type birds are: chickens (all breeds of standard and bantam sizes), turkeys, ducks, peafowl, geese, quail, pheasant, guineas, chukars, swans, etc. For further clarification, or to participate in the NPIP program (a voluntary disease monitoring program for producers who have their own breeder birds), contact Dana Brindley-Bennett at dana.bennett@agi.alabama.gov or 334/240-6590.

In Memory of the Late Kent Habeger

The judge of the Commissioner's Classic held in October, 2008, Kent Habeger, died in a freak accident on December 8th at his farm in Iowa at the age of 50. He grew up on the family farm near Burt, Iowa where his family continues to reside specializing in the production of show cattle.

He graduated from Iowa State University with a degree in Farm Operations with an emphasis on Animal Science. Kent had a special appreciation for "High Quality" cattle. He proudly farmed along side his father, Duane, for over 30 years and along with their boys, he and his wife Marti also developed Habeger Show Cattle. Through this business, he met and influenced many people all over the country and was proud of the many championships that were accomplished with these relationships. Kent judged numerous cattle shows from the local to the national level in several states.

Huffman Scholarship Established at Auburn

A new scholarship that has been established in Auburn University's College of Agriculture honors a world-famous Auburn meat scientist. The Dr. Dale Huffman Endowed Scholarship in Animal Sciences was created in the name of AU Department of Animal Sciences professor emeritus Dale Huffman, who joined the Auburn faculty in 1963 and spent the next 32 years teaching and conducting research. His work at Auburn garnered international attention and led to breakthroughs in lean ground beef technology, including the development of McDonalds' McLean Deluxe and McRib sandwiches.

The new scholarship was established by Huffman's son, Randy, a 1986 graduate of Auburn's Department of Animal Sciences who now is president of the American Meat Institute Foundation in Washington, D.C. In his current position, the younger Huffman manages the foundation's research initiatives, industry best practices development and educational programming.

Randy Huffman attributes much of his own success, both in meat science and in life, to his father and to Auburn. Establishing the scholarship endowment to help support future meat scientists was his opportunity to pay tribute to both.

"I wanted to honor my dad because of what he has meant to me and my career," he said. "I also felt that I needed to give back to Auburn, specifically to the meat science program in animal sciences, because it is where I got the passion for the industry and learned the basics that have served me well in my career."

L. Wayne Greene, head of Auburn's Department of Animal Sciences, noted the tremendous impact the elder Huffman had on the meat science industry during his life's work at AU and said the Huffman scholarship will enhance the College of Agriculture's ability to continue attracting and training tomorrow's leaders of the dynamic field.

Though Randy Huffman supplied the initial funds required to endow the scholarship and award it annually, additional funds will build the endowment and provide more scholarships.

For information on contributing to the scholarship, please contact the Auburn University College of Agriculture office at 334/844-1475 or agdevelopment@auburn.edu.

of "Agri-tourism" where families and classroom students have a farm experience and learn what Alabama agriculture is all about. Activities are held year round to encourage the public to come have a taste of life on the farm. For upcoming events, please log onto their website www.oldbakerfarm.com.

The Department of Agriculture and Industries began coordinating this program in 1976. The program got its start when a representative from the Department met with the director of the Alabama Historical Commission to discuss some way to recognize small family farms that had been in operation over a long period of time. It was decided recognition should be given to these farms because they had played such a significant part in Alabama's history.

The population in rural Alabama at that time was rapidly changing as people moved to urban areas. The number of family farms was diminishing rapidly at the time as it still is today. It was decided that farms with over one hundred years of ownership should be recognized for this significant achievement. Since 2006, the Department not only provides the families with a certificate signed by the Governor and the Commissioner of Agriculture, but also with an aluminum farm sign for display outdoors on the farm.

The first certificates of recognition were presented at an Alabama Farm Bureau meeting in Birmingham during the month of December, 1977. To date, more than 450 farms in the state have been recognized. For additional information on the program, please contact Amy Belcher at 334/240-7126 or e-mail at: amy.belcher@agi.alabama.gov. A complete list of Century and Heritage Farms is available on the department's website www.agi.alabama.gov under "Ag Links."

EPA ISSUES A FINAL RULE

The Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) issued a final rule on December 12 providing an administrative reporting exemption for air releases of hazardous substances from animal waste at farms. Commissioner Ron Sparks, who is currently President of the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NASDA), said NASDA and other agricultural organizations have urged the EPA to address this issue for some time and strongly supported EPA's original proposal in 2007 to exempt farm operations from the reporting requirements.

"This announcement takes away any ambiguity or inconsistencies in previous language," said Sparks. "The EPA has made it clear that livestock and poultry farmers do not have to report air emissions on their farms as it is not considered a hazardous substance release. This type of disposal has not been acted on by state or local officials in the past and will not be acted on in the future."

EPA officials said the rule will enable response authorities to better focus their attention on hazardous substance releases that require a response, while reducing reporting burdens for farms. Animal Feeding Operations will continue to keep a record of their waste disposal as required by Alabama Department of Environmental Management (ADEM).

Large Concentrated Animal Feeding Operations (CAFOs) will continue to submit emergency notification reports under EPCRA. Notifications must still be made to response authorities when hazardous substances are released to the air from sources other than animal waste (e.g., ammonia tanks), and when hazardous substances are released to soil and water.

More information on the final rule can be found at: <http://www.epa.gov/emergencies/content/epcra/index.htm>.

Year!

HORTICULTURE TOUR OF SATSUMA OPERATION

Demand for local products increases

By Dennis Sherer, Staff Writer for the Times Daily

As the economic crisis prompts many Americans to rediscover cooking at home as a way to save money, some local farmers are finding new markets for their products. Teresa McDonald, Colbert County coordinator for the Alabama Cooperative Extension System, said the return of home cooking instead of eating out is providing a niche for local farmers. Many home cooks prefer meats and produce grown in their community instead of those from distant states or even other countries.

"We had a lot more people shopping at our local farmers' markets this year," McDonald said. After all the food contamination scares this year, people like knowing where their produce is coming from and really like knowing the person who grew it."

Adam Cox, owner of Cox Butcher Shop on Lauderdale 16 north of Florence, said the "buy local" craze has been a boon for his business that specializes in locally grown beef, pork and lamb produced without steroids or preservatives. "Our beef comes from the pasture right behind the shop, our pork comes from a farm up in Tennessee, our lamb comes from local farms. Everything we sell except the poultry comes from farms within 30 miles of here," Cox said.

As she toured the butcher shop, Sibyl Wright, agency outreach and small farms coordinator for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's outreach and partnership division, said the demand for locally grown meat and produce is soaring all across the country. "Economically, it makes more sense to produce our food locally rather than channeling it from another country," she said. "Consumers are demanding locally produced food. They want to be more connected with the food they eat."

She and other USDA officials who toured local farm-related businesses are hopeful the federal agency can enhance the promotion of Alabama-grown farm products and create new markets for farmers and small business operators. Wright said programs such as the Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries' Alabama A-Plus, which showcases specialty crops, greenhouse goods, Christmas trees, sods, nuts and pond-raised shrimp, help connect farmers with retailers and wholesalers, and help producers take advantage of the growing demand for locally grown farm products.

Brad Brooks, of Killen, a regional vice president for the Alabama Cattlemen's Association, said most cattle farmers produce beef without injecting the animals with hormones that boost growth. He said the growing demand for locally grown beef produced without hormones and drugs creates new marketing opportunities for Shoals cattle farmers. He expects more local farmers to take advantage of the new marketing opportunities offered by consumer demands for meat and produce grown close to their home.
